Mr. Newman...

As a courtesy, should we now address you as "Sir Eric"?

From a friendly traffic officer: "Our biggest problems are not urban or suburban, but bourbon drivers."

(very nice!)
SOS: Wilma Hull and Ellie Beckers tell us volunteers are needed at the offices of Lifeline, the non-profit, computerized donor registry for persons who wish to donate organs or tissues when they die. The organization has almost 8,000 donors on file, and some extra help is needed to enter data into the computer.

(very nice!)
Get ready, undress: You are cordially invited to attend a benefit on the mall at Plaza Frontenac Sept. 16 at 8:30 p.m. and donate your "attending attire" for charity when you depart. The Fashion Group of St. Louis, which is staging the dinner dance called "Clothes Off Your Back Ball," assures guests that they can leave under wraps the group will provide. Generous knight and Edison Bros. executive Eric Newman has donated a 16th century suit of armor and Cardinals' catcher Ted Simmons hopes to make a hit by donating one of his uniforms. Tickets are $15.

Plaudits: Carolyn and N. Arne Arneson of Clayton, whose hobby turned them into weekend vintners on their farm in Steeleville, are the proud recipients of a gold medal for first prize in the category of dry red wine at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia. Their wines are now sold under brand name of Peaceful Bend Vineyards at retail price of $10.00. of Alton, Ill.
